Ford says he'll keep on truckin'

'A lot of stupid things.' Toronto mayor says he wants to continue to serve, despite mistakes

Toronto Mayor Rob Ford acknowledged Sunday he has made mistakes but left unanswered questions about the alleged crack video that has propelled him into the international spotlight.

"I'm the first one to admit I am not perfect, I have made mistakes," Ford told his weekly radio show. "Unfortunately, I can not change the past, I can just move forward and learn from the past, which, I assure you, I'm doing."

Ford apologized to his family, members of city council and Toronto taxpayers. He said he was referring to being inebriated in public and texting while driving.

"A lot of stupid things, it's all self-inflicted," he said while promising he would make changes.

Ford didn't talk about the contents of the video that police say matches the one that two media outlets say appears to show him smoking crack. He said he hasn't seen the video so it's impossible to explain its contents.

"Obviously when the video is released, I'm going to explain to the best of my ability what's in the video," said Ford, who called on police Chief Bill Blair to release the video so everyone can see it. "That is the right thing to do and chief, I'm asking you to release this video now."

Blair said Thursday the video will be evidence in the case against Alexander Lisi — a friend and sometimes driver for the mayor. Police allege Lisi tried to get his hands on the video and charged him with extortion. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Young, smart and living in an uncertain world

EMPEY
Editor-in-Chief

You know the Metro mindset: we're smart, quirky, rule breakers and über disruptors. So you won't be surprised — but we do hope you'll be excited — about an exclusive collaboration with celebrated Canadian author Douglas Coupland.

TEMP, serialized fiction running in Metro each weekday from today to Nov. 29, explores what it means to be young, smart, and only temporarily employed, through the eyes of a contemporary cast of characters just trying to carve a place for themselves in an uncertain world.

Temp opens with: "Greetings. My name is Shannon. I'm a temp, but more than that, I'm the future of employment in the Western world. Sure, you may have a job right now, but one day you'll be me."

When Douglas approached us with his concept for a serialized narrative we jumped on the opportunity for a partnership. Douglas has been described as possibly the most gifted interpreter of North American pop culture writing today — and TEMP more than lives up to his reputation.

When I asked Douglas why Metro, he told me, "Metro is the tom-toms of the global village. It's the new face of old media. It reaches millions of people who devour every word and it all ends up being discussed in lunchrooms, meeting rooms, and dinner tables around the world."

And what does TEMP say about Douglas's take on tomorrow?

Read on! The first installment is on page 10.

Like alien eggs inside your brain

Dépêche fiction

A traditional novel will always be central to human civilization, but I get the impression a new form of storytelling is being called for. I call it dépêche fiction: fast-changing fiction.

bad stuff? That's what Shannon's all about.

But wait. Why Metro? And why me writing about a character named Shannon in Metro? Two reasons. One: I always set my books in what I call "the extreme present tense." As living creatures, the present moment is all we have. It truly is... it's freaky and messy and weird. But it's ours and soon enough the present tense will become the Good Old Days — so enjoy it.

Two: I'm no longer sure if fiction is keeping pace with life and how we live it. I'm a born experimenter and I want to try something new to address this lack. I've said it before, and I'll say it again: as a species we've never been smarter yet we've never felt more stupid. We live in a world of devices and clouds and economic bubbles. A traditional novel will always be central to human civilization, but I get the impression a new form of storytelling is being called for. I call it dépêche fiction: fast-changing fiction. (Yes, kind of like Depeche Mode, a band I totally like.)

Dépêche fiction is a cappuccino hit. Dépêche fiction is a really awesome Russian dash cam clip. Dépêche fiction is written so that it accumulates in your brain over time, and then, just like alien eggs, it suddenly hatches and makes your brain say, "Hey! I'm feeling something tingly and new! And BTW, I've overtaken your existence!"

What to expect? Well, it's not The Office, and it's not a comic strip. TEMP is something new — and you get to be a part of the experiment. And Metro is the perfect slot for TEMP. Metro is read by people who are out there in the world living a full-on modern experience. Fiction is about readers being able to say, "Wait — that's how I see the world!" And I hope that's what you feel. And now let the eggs hatch.

DOUGLAS COUPLAND

In the next four weeks you'll be reading the daily story of a very likeable character named Shannon. You already know Shannon — everyone knows Shannon — you may well be Shannon. She's that slightly geeky gal who temps at every office you've ever worked at. She's funny, she's got her head screwed on right, and most of all, Shannon lives in our collective real world. She lives in the year 2013 and Shannon's world is changing and mutating as rapidly as yours.

Change: that dreaded word. If only we could have a one-year holiday from change — but that's not going to happen and we all know it. So then, how do we make the most of life as it's really lived? How do we cope and find the good stuff amidst the

'Dog spray' used on OC Transpo bus sends teens to hospital

'Facial irritation.'

Police say 'three male young persons' have been taken into custody as a result of the investigation

Two teenagers are in hospital after being sprayed with a "dog spray" on an OC Transpo bus Sunday afternoon, police say.

According to Ottawa Paramedic Service Supt. John Keylor, paramedics on scene at the South Keys transit stop assessed several passengers who were travelling on the No. 87 bus and sent two of them by ambulance to hospital.

"We assessed four people, two of which were sent to (the Children's Hospital of Eastern Ontario) for facial irritation of the throat and nose," said Keylor, adding that the pair was listed in stable condition.

"Two more declined transport."

According to Ottawa Fire Services' public-information officer Mark Messier, hazmat crews were called to the transit stop around 2:45 p.m. after several passengers complained that a substance was sprayed

A news release issued Sunday evening by police said emergency services were called in after a girl had "difficulty breathing because of the deployment of pepper spray."

The release said work by the hazmat team and police found the substance to be "dog spray."

Police said "three male young persons" had been taken into custody as a result of the investigation.

The southbound Transitway was closed for about an hour before reopening.

City shouldn't fight Carp Road Landfill: Lawyer

If the City of Ottawa goes to court to fight the expansion of Waste Management's Carp Road Landfill, the chance of winning the case is "quite low," according to a report commissioned by the city's lawyer Rick O'Connor.

In a memo to city staff Friday, O'Connor recommended that, instead of fighting the project in court, the city should work closely with the province's Ministry of Environment to address outstanding issues like odour control, groundwater protection/drainage monitoring and the impact the project could have on traffic flow. The memo warned that a legal battle with the Ottawa dump could cost taxpayers anywhere between $125,000 and $265,000 on top of the city's own legal fees.

"Our opinion is that an application for judicial review based on the alleged non-compliance with the approved (Terms of Reference) in this case will in all likelihood be unsuccessful," noted the report by law firm Heenan Blaikie. "We consider the probabilities of success in such a proceeding to be quite low."

Waste Management's proposed expansion that would see the west Ottawa landfill accept 400,000 tonnes of waste per year for the next 10 years, was approved by the Ministry of Environment earlier this fall.

Surprise win helps local athlete bounce back

Trampolining.

Blackburn Hamlet native heading to global competition

Trampoline gymnast Taysia Thompson was having a so-so year in the air until a surprising 2nd-place finish at the Canada Cup competition in July earned her an invitation to the 22nd FIG Trampoline Gymnastics World Age Group Competitions in Sofia, Bulgaria.

"It happened by accident," Thompson says. "I wasn't having a great year up to then, but that one day, everything went right. Everything changed for me after that."

Now, Thomson, who trains with team Unigym in Gatineau, has been selected to be one of four athletes representing Canada in her age category.

Known both for her athleticism and creativity, Thompson says if she has one big advantage in competition, it's that she loves an audience.

"I like the feeling of flying around. I really enjoy it. It takes a lot of pressure off when you're having fun instead of feeling nervous. I don't get nervous when I'm in a competition, I feel like I am a performer in a show," she said.

And what a show. Training four nights a week with coach Yann Prigent, who competed in the 2008 Beijing Olympics, Thompson jumps 40 feet high, stringing together a series of dazzling, and sometimes dangerous, twists, tucks and pikes including her signature move, the half-out tuck.

It's the routine she used at the Flowers Cup competition in Amsterdam in March, where she finished 22nd in the world. If she does well at the World Age Group Competition next week, she'll begin preparing for the 2016 and 2020 Olympics.

In the meantime, she's taking the year off to train, ride her unicycle, cheerlead for the Ottawa 67s home hockey games, and weigh her university options. Eventually, she would like to become an aerial gymnast with Cirque de Soleil.

Gatineau

Three-year-old found at bus stop

A Gatineau boy has been returned to his home safely, after he wandered out of his house in the wee hours of the morning Friday and ended up at a bus shelter wearing nothing but a T-shirt and shorts.

According to police, the three-year-old boy wandered out the back door while his parents were sleeping. A couple driving by saw the child sitting in the shelter on Labelle Street and called police. "Since it was cold, they stopped and put him in their car," said police Lieut. Jean-Marc Tasse. He said cops cruised the streets trying to find out where the child wandered from. "We tried to find his parents, but he couldn't indicate where he lived."

His father later called police looking for the boy. Police said no charges are being laid.

If the Ottawa SkyHawks could have turned back the clock just 12 minutes, they would've won the franchise's first ever NBL Canada game Saturday evening at Canadian Tire Centre.

The Hawks (0-1) had a seven-point lead late in the third quarter, and still led by two over the visiting Windsor Express (2-0) heading into the final frame.

But they couldn't hold on. Much to the disappointment of the estimated 2,600 fans in attendance, many of them boisterous youngsters, the game ended with a final score of Windsor 112, Ottawa 105.

"We had (Windsor) where we wanted them, we just didn't execute," said head coach Kevin Keathley. "We didn't maximize our runs, and we didn't minimize theirs. We could've pushed our lead to nine or 10 (late in the third quarter), instead we turned (the ball) over."

The Express led 51-44 at halftime, building their lead to as much as 11 points early into the second half. But the SkyHawks clawed back with a nice run, and a few minutes later narrowed the Windsor lead to just a single point at 73-72.

After another push, the SkyHawks took the lead, pulling ahead 83-76.

That lead wouldn't last. Turnovers throughout the fourth quarter kept the Hawks from regaining the advantage, and, more importantly, cost

The fast and furious scoring pace started slowly. The first basket in SkyHawks franchise history was scored one minute and 18 seconds into the game. An eternity in basketball, but well worth the wait.

And what a thing of beauty it was; a looping 25-foot three-pointer — nothing but net — by six-foot-three guard Justin Tubbs. The 26-year-old Tubbs poured in 22 points on the night, co-leading the SkyHawks along with Tirrell Baines. Windsor's Stefan Bonneau, a five-foot-10 point guard, was the Express's top scorer with 28.

'No clemency' for Snowden: Officials

A 'terrible idea'

Whistleblower made the plea in a letter saying 'speaking the truth is not a crime'

The White House and the leaders of the intelligence committees in Congress are rejecting National Security Agency-contractor Edward Snowden's plea for clemency.

"Mr. Snowden violated U.S. law," White House adviser Dan Pfeiffer said Sunday about the former systems analyst turned fugitive who has temporary asylum in Russia.

"He should return to the U.S. and face justice," Pfeiffer said, adding when pressed that no offers for clemency were being discussed.

Snowden made the plea in a letter given to a German politician and released Friday. In his one-page typed letter, he asks for clemency for

But the head of the Senate Intelligence Committee said if Snowden had been a true whistleblower, he could have reported it to her committee privately. "That didn't happen, and now he's done this enormous disservice to our country," said Democratic Sen. Dianne Feinstein. "I think the answer is no clemency."

The chairman of the House Intelligence Committee, Rep. Mike Rogers, called clemency for Snowden a "terrible idea."

Dozens killed in wedding attack

Suspected Islamic militants attacked a wedding convoy in northeast Nigeria, killing more than 30 people, including the groom, a government spokesman said Sunday.

Military spokesman Lt. Col. Muhammed Dole said only five people were killed in Saturday's attack on the highway between Gama and Gwoza towns in Borno state that runs alongside forests known as a hideout of Islamic militants of Boko Haram.

But a minibus taxi driver said he passed many bodies on the road near Firgi village, where the wedding ceremony took place Saturday.

"We saw a lot of dead bodies killed by gunshots and some by the roadside that appeared to have been slaughtered" with their throats slit, the driver, identified as Shaibu, said Sunday.

Adamawa state spokesman Ahmad Sajoh said the wedding fatiha, the official Muslim ceremony, had taken place in Firgi village in neighbouring Borno state and the groom and guests were driving home to Adamawa when they were attacked. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Speech at Tory summit raises contradictions

Senate scandal. Chief fundraiser adds more fuel to fire that Tories hope to extinguish

Conservatives are hoping a vote to suspend three senators without pay this week might help turn the page on a scandal that has jammed their political momentum for months.

"What most of our MPs are hearing from constituents is that they're sick of the whole story and the issue. They want to see something decisive done ... and then to move on," Employment Minister Jason Kenney said on the weekend.

"I hope that the Senate makes a decision on that motion as soon as possible."

The government's deputy leader in the Senate predicted the vote to suspend Mike Duffy, Pamela Wallin and Patrick Brazeau will come Tuesday.

MPs and a few senators are returning to Ottawa from Calgary after wrapping up a biennial policy convention — which may have added another chapter or two to the saga.

The party's chief fundraiser, Sen. Irving Gerstein, used a Saturday convention speech to reveal what he knew about the discussions behind the scandal. "I made it absolutely clear to Nigel Wright (Harper's former chief of staff) that the Conservative Fund of Canada would not pay for Sen. Duffy's disputed expenses and it never did," Gerstein said.

That's a different story than what was communicated to the RCMP through Wright's lawyers. They said the party was "going to pay" Duffy's expenses when it thought they totalled $32,000 but balked when the price tag tripled. Wright says he wound up paying out of his own pocket. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Surreal battle. Neighbours fight off polar-bear attack

Mitch Paddock was at a friend's house in what's known as the polar-bear capital of the world early Friday when he heard a woman scream.

He ran outside and saw his neighbour, whom he and others have identified as Bill Ayotte, being mauled.

"He was on his back; the bear was right on top of him with both paws," Paddock said Saturday from Churchill, Man.

Ayotte had run out to help the woman, Paddock said. He explained that the man hit the animal with a shovel, giving the woman time to flee.

But then Ayotte was the one in serious trouble.

Paddock said he raced into his house to grab a shotgun that shoots fire-cracker shells, which are designed to scare wildlife. He said many people in Churchill have them.

He ran back to the scene in Churchill, Man., in his socks and began firing, but the bear remained undeterred.

"Another neighbour ...

was throwing shoes," he said. "One of my neighbours was standing on the deck in his underwear, shooting at him, too."

"Eventually I hit him in the side with one of these cracker shells, and ... he ran away."

But the bear only ran a few metres before resuming the attack. At that point, Paddock said the neighbour who was also shooting jumped into his pickup truck and drove up to the animal while honking the horn. That eventually drove the bear away, he said.

Police said Ayotte, 69, suffered lacerations and was taken to hospital in stable condition. The woman, who police said was 30, was in the same state.

Manitoba Conservation said they fatally shot two bears. A spokesman said it's not normal practice to automatically shoot bears, but that's what the situation required.

Age of consent

Are the changes in Vatican City progress or PR?

While Vatican City amended its criminal code in July to raise the age of consent to 18, has anything really changed?

Previously, the Vatican had the lowest age of consent in Europe — 12 — and a record of child sex-abuse scandals. Pope Francis overhauled the criminal code, in part to comply with international treaties such as the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child.

Now, sex with a person under the age of 18, prostitution or possession of child porn can be punished by up to 12 years in prison.

Critics say this hasn't changed anything and is a feel-good gesture that's more about generating positive headlines than driving real change in the church.

The Vatican also made it a crime to leak information about criminal activity to anyone outside the church — punishable by up to eight years in prison.

"Canada has always been a hot-tea-drinking country because of our British past."

Louise Roberge, president of the Tea Association of Canada, a lobbyist group for the industry gaged by the complexities and the intricacies of tea," said Keith Howlett, an analyst with Desjardins, who watches trends in the retail industry.

"It's a familiar beverage and I think that's opened up possibilities."

During the past few years, more tea shops have established a quiet presence in neighbourhoods across the country, relying primarily on word of mouth to entice new customers, but the buzz is about to become much louder as Starbucks tries to grab a taste of the fervour.

Last month, the Seattle-based coffee chain opened its first "tea bar" in New York City, a symbolic step towards expanding its Teavana store base. The company made the biggest acquisition in its history last year when it spent $620 million US to acquire about 300 Teavana stores, including 59 locations in Canada.

The rollout could find a particularly receptive audience in Canada where tea is the fifth most popular beverage, with nearly 10 billion cups drunk each year, according to Statistics Canada. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Women's rights. Bank of Canada may put women on currency ... next time

Bank of Canada governor Stephen Poloz says he is "absolutely open" to the idea of putting an identifiable woman back on Canada's currency, but that will have to wait until the next roll-out of bills.

The central bank has taken heat from women's groups for removing the so-called Famous Five, relating to the Supreme Court case that recognized women as persons, from the $50 note in the most recent roll-out of polymer bills.

Poloz acknowledges he had a weighty petition with 22,000 signatures plunked on his desk recently drawing his attention to the omission.

Canadian women may have to wait a few years, however, possibly as much as a decade. And there are no guarantees.

Poloz says the process takes years and includes public consultations and focus-group testing to settle on a theme and the images to display the theme.

In the current series, which cost $20 million to develop, the chosen theme was "frontiers" dealing with Canadian breakthroughs.

part-time workers

The service industry has the highest level of temp jobs that are considered "precarious employment," according to a report called Untapped Potential: Creating a Better Future for Service Workers, by the Institute for Competitive-ness & Prosperity and the Martin Prosperity Institute.

Part-time work that pays less than $24,000 a year, "precarious employment," makes it tough to get ahead. Sometimes juggling more than one job, in positions such as cashiers, taxi drivers and health-care aides, few of these routine service workers receive health or dental benefits or have access to retirement pension plans, the report notes. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Temp Enlivens Life-Sucking Meeting

I've learned over the years that the fastest way to turn an office to a grinding halt is simply to write 'broken' on a piece of paper, and tape it onto the photocopier. Staffers walk to the machine, see the sign, feel momentarily inconvenienced, and then glow inwardly when they realize they can blamelessly return to their cubicle and play FreeCell and trawl the Internet for Russian dash-cam car accident gifs.

Greetings. My name is Shannon. I'm a temp, but more than that, I'm the future of employment in the Western world. Sure, you may have a job right now, but one day you'll be me, roving from gig to gig, no medical, no dental, no anything else except the pleasure of not having to kiss ass or put up with imbeciles or care much about things like, say, life-suckingly boring meetings of the sort I sit in on at Taylor, Wagner & Kimura Filter Systems. TWK's owners are systematically moving the company to China and everyone knows it. Pretty much once a day someone at TWK is given the axe while I, as temp goddess, casually buff my nails or stalk Facebook looking for unflattering photos of the popular kids I used to go to high school with. There used to be a full-time receptionist but she went on mat leave. So here I am. Temp!

Dan Wagner (the Danimal) who co-owns TWK understands my devil-may-care, low-commitment attitude. Like today when he called me in from the front. "If it's OK, young Shannon here is going to take notes on today's meeting." Dan always winks at me, which is slightly perty but technically not actionable as harassment.

The Three Sarahs roll their eyes when Dan brings me in. Yes, you read that correctly: Sarah from Marketing, Sarah from Ecommerce Strategy and Sarah from Systems. Don't get me going.

So when the meeting invariably turns into an inevitable miasma of fear and crushed dreams Dan will say, "Shannon, give us a lift, why don't you. What's your random fun fact of the day?"

Today's fun fact: "Well, Dan, what country on Earth has the world's lowest age of consent?" This question was just racy enough to ensure that even the Sarahs listened in.

"What country would that be, Shannon?"

"The Vatican. The age of consent there is 12."

Even the Sarahs reacted to that one.

SELF-CONTROL – NOT LAWS – NEEDED

A few weeks ago, as I waited at the Rideau Centre for my scenic No. 12 detour through Sandy Hill, I overheard a strangely familiar voice making small talk on the uncommonly wonkish topics of agriculture, potash and Eugene Whelan.

Who could it be but Saskatchewan Liberal MP Ralph Goodale, who used to get around town in a limo as the country's finance minister? He said goodbye to his interlocutor and got on my bus, where he was just another passenger, unremarked and seemingly unrecognized.

So when Goodale reintroduced Bill C-533, which would increase penalties for assaulting transit operators on the job, I had a sense his heart was in the right place: on the bus.

In order to improve the snowball's chance his private member's bill has of becoming law, he's asking the Conservative government to get behind it. The NDP's Peter Julian has tabled similar legislation.

The ATU local is enthusiastically onside and council is likely to

URBAN COMPASS

Steve Collins

ottawa@metronews.ca

come out in support of the bill in a city that last year reported an assault on a transit driver about every two weeks on average, where many were angered last week to see a local thug get a suspended sentence for breaking a driver's nose and cracking his rib.

Threats to operator safety are threats to passenger safety and to the functioning of the entire transit system, so, sure, if the victim of an assault is an on-duty driver, it should be considered an aggravating factor.

The only problem is I doubt the measure would have any practical effect on driver safety.

Don't get me wrong; these attacks disgust me. Sucker-punching a driver (male or female)—who, by the way, is seated and likely strapped in—and then more often than not running away is pretty low for anyone in possession of opposable thumbs.

When I saw video of a berserk assault on a Winnipeg bus driver and learned police had arrested a suspect last week, I was a little ashamed to find myself wishing him a particularly unpleasant and accident-prone time in custody.

But whether a particular abuser is struggling with poor impulse control or inflated self-importance, substance abuse or mental illness, the one thing they are unlikely wrestling with is a rational calculation of the potential cost of their actions. Tough-on-crime measures are good politics, but making offences even more illegal have spotty records of reducing incidence.

I don't have the solution either, but we could start with an attitude adjustment on behalf of riders, the normal, non-violent ones who still can't help blaming their lateness on the person driving the bus just because that's who's handy for venting on.

Frustration is an unavoidable ingredient of shared transportation. Last Friday morning, I budgeted 40 minutes for a 25-minute trip on a bus purportedly scheduled every six minutes.

Somewhere, the transit gods were laughing their asses off. I missed the first bus and then waited over 20 minutes for the next one. Add construction and traffic, and that 25-minute ride took an hour. Not the driver's fault, and no one should take it out on them.

WE ACT: CANADA DOES GOOD

Hope Blooms in north-end Halifax

Across the nation in our neighbourhoods, Canadians are up to a whole lot of good. Here's one we'd like you to meet:

Who: Jessie Jollymore (pictured), 54, green-thumbed go-getter

Where: Halifax, N.S.

What: Hope Blooms, a youth-led community garden

Why: "When you change the way you look at things, the things you look at change," says Jollymore.

Jollymore saw potential in a trash-filled lot of the public housing project of Uniacke Square. With chicken wire, donated seedlings and a five-hose line connected to a kitchen sink, she mobilized nine youth from the low-income neighbourhood to set up a community garden. Today, the volunteers of Hope Blooms are local leaders and expert farmers, producing more than 2,000 pounds of communal crops annually.

What inspired you to get started? "I felt that if there was something growing that the youth felt was their own, it may change things. We didn't know what we were doing at first. I basically had to search, 'How do you plant things?' But we kept digging until we had over 3,600 square feet and a greenhouse."

What motivates the work you do every day? "These youth were bullied in school, picked on because of where they live. But they changed the way they see themselves — as business people, as changemakers — and people outside the community are changing the way they see the kids."

"There's an old saying that it takes a village to raise a child, but sometimes the children raise the village."

Need to illustrate your status update?

There's an app for that. When words aren't enough, Bitstrips supplies toons for your tales

ANDREA PARK
Metro World News in New York

If you've been spending time lately on Facebook (and who among us hasn't), you may have noticed cartoon versions of your friends popping up on your news feed from an app called Bitstrips. The app was released in 2012, but the company only came out with iPhone and Android updates in September. Now, the personalized comic app is exploding on Facebook, with more than 11 million downloads since its December 2012 launch.

Bitstrips allows you to interact with your friends through social media using comic messages and visual status updates. Here are five things you need to know about the most popular free app on iTunes right now:

1. Bitstrips is Canadian

"We've been completely overwhelmed by the enormous response," said CEO, creative director and co-founder Jacob Blackstock (a.k.a BA). "We're ecstatic that this new way to express yourself online is capturing people's imagination in the way that it has."

first rose to prominence in Canada, the app has taken off around the world, from Europe to Latin America. It's even been adopted by the Ontario school system for use in classrooms across the province.

2. You are the star

You can completely customize your avatar on Bitstrips, from adding in a wheelchair to changing the size of your pupils. You can then add your character into preset Bitstrips scenes; you can share these on Facebook or make greeting cards with them.

3. Your friends can join you in the comic strips

If your friends are on Bitstrips with their own avatars, you can add them into your own comic strips for fun, pre-set scenarios like, "Jane finally bores John to death," with a comic of John leaving on a stretcher while Jane chats away.

4. You need to have Facebook to use Bitstrips

Like it or not, if you want to use Bitstrips you have to be game for letting the app post your comics on Facebook. You can change the privacy settings of your Bitstrips so your Facebook friends don't see them, but they do get sent to your profile. The strips are meant to be used in lieu of a Facebook status or wall post, like, "John is excited to be going on vacation."

5. You can change the Bitstrips scenes

While the background and positioning of the avatars will stay the same in given Bitstrips scenes, you can change facial expressions and text to make the strips your own.

Housework

It's all fun and games — and your house ends up clean

Are you finding it hard to get any amount of house-work done with your busy toddler?

Give yourself twice (or three times) as long to do a normal task — like vacuuming or mopping — and try to turn it into a game where your toddler can help you.

Strap him on your back and let him push the vacuum with you. Let him help you “wring out” the mop. Let him dry dishes.

Sure, you might make more of a mess along the way, but he’ll enjoy being your sidekick, and your house will at least be cleanish.

The gift of not giving a thing

A new approach. One mom shares why she doesn't want any more presents for her kids

CHRISTELLA MORRIS
YummyMummyClub.ca

We're pretty lucky in our family. In May alone, I can cross off three out of four birthdays! Christmas and the fourth birthday are taken care of in December. This makes for a lot less time worrying about buying presents and a lot more time thinking about how much stuff we have. I really can't imagine having more things in my house. Toys, clothes, sippy cups, dirty dishes — we've got so much already.

I don't want to sound ungrateful for the amazing generosity of our friends and family because we're beyond thankful for all they've given us. But it's just so much. My boys really do not need another thing.

My favourite thing about presents is giving them. I spend extra time and care when giving so I know how difficult it can be to find that perfect gift.

But what if nobody gave my boys presents anymore? What if they only gave them gifts? The gifts of experience, adventure, and, more importantly, familiarity that they truly need.

So, before the start of the holiday season, I'm beginning a new tradition by asking that our friends and family offer experiences and time with our boys instead of money spent on them. Instead of buying my boys a toy lion, why not take one (or both) of them to the zoo to see a real one? Spending some time with a family member or friend would mean so much more to them than another toy.

Not a lot of time to give? What about contributing toward one of the shockingly expensive activities the boys participate in — piano, drum, guitar, swimming, dance lessons or soccer?

Don't have a lot of money? Hey, neither do we! No biggie. How about just spending some quality time with the boys? Set a day and take them to the park. Take one of them on a bike ride. Take one to the movies. Instead of investing in their toy collections, invest in your relationship with them.

We have a really good friend who, back in May, couldn't make it to Cash's third birthday party. She said she wanted to drop off a present at another time and I said, “He really doesn't need anything, but we'd love a visit! Why not just take him and do something with him, just the two of you?” In the end she, her boyfriend, and their friend and her daughter went to the zoo with Cash and he loved it.

I always think about the what ifs. What if something happened to me? What if something happened to their dad? They've built strong bonds with some family members, but others are only seen on occasion and only for short periods of time.

Building relationships now with these family members and friends will only benefit them in the long run if something were to ever happen to us.

These are the things I think about, people. Deep, I know.

But seriously, if you're in our circle of friends or family, please don't buy my kids presents but instead give them the gift of your time and love. That's the only thing they need.

First the pumpkin patch, then the world

This morning, my little girl is getting on a school bus and going to the pumpkin patch on a class trip. I feel like crying. I wanted to go with her. The school said no parent volunteers. I wanted to keep her home. My husband said, “Let her go!”

I'm not sure I'm ready for my kiddo to grow up. To have experiences — without me!

I think I want her to stay my baby just a little big longer.

But this is all part of the parenting journey (or so they say).

First it's a class trip, then day camp in the summer. Before I know it, she'll be going over to her friends' houses without me and walking to school by herself. Inevitably, she'll grow up, whether I'm ready for her to or not.

It's all just a bit hard to swallow.

How do you let your kid grow up without getting in her way? How do you hide your apprehension so she can go out into the world and be brave and confident and full of wonder?

I'm reminded of an interview I did last year with Dr. Michael Thompson, a psychologist and best-selling author of Homesick and Happy: How Time Away From Parents Can Help A Child Grow. He said, “Modern parents think their presence always adds value to their kids lives, ... but this is not the case. You cannot give your child independence. You can only open the door and let your child walk out and have an experience on his or her own.”

So, here I go. I'm opening the door. I'm not getting in my car and following that big yellow school bus all the way to the pumpkin patch (though, trust me, I've thought about it). I'm not insisting that I be allowed to accompany my child on this trip. I'm letting her go. I'm letting her grow. I'm letting her spread her little wings.

And all I can do is pray that she's always safe and happy, even when I'm not by her side.

Now someone pass me the wine — quick!

Prostate cancer 101: Symptoms and prevention

What is the prostate?

The walnut-sized prostate is a part of the male reproductive system. It adds nutrients and fluid to sperm, and is located in front of the rectum, right below the bladder.

What is prostate cancer?

Prostate cancer is a disease in which some prostate cells have lost normal control of growth and division. They no longer function as healthy cells.

Signs and symptoms of prostate cancer:

- Difficulty urinating
- Urgent need to urinate
- Frequent urination, especially at nighttime
- Burning or pain when urinating
- Inability to urinate or difficulty starting or stopping urine flow
- Painful ejaculation
- Blood in the urine or semen

Beware silent symptoms
Symptoms are not always present, especially in the early stages of prostate cancer. But if detected and treated early, your chances of survival are greatly increased. It's vital to get screened regularly so that if you do develop prostate cancer, the appropriate treatment can be taken.

Diet and lifestyle

- Men who have a low-fibre, high-fat diet have a higher rate of prostate cancer.
- A high body mass index (BMI) may increase your risk of prostate cancer.
- Being physically active is a good preventative tactic, along with losing weight and eating the right foods. Consuming lycopene (found in tomatoes and tomato products), soy, green tea and cruciferous vegetables (such as broccoli), may help to prevent prostate cancer. METRO

Start those 'staches: Movember marks 10 years of hairy upper lips

Worldwide campaign.
Annual event contributes millions to research and encourages men to take control of their health

Movember celebrates its 10th anniversary this fall. That's a decade spent raising funds for and awareness of prostate and testicular cancer, along with highlighting men's health in general. Since its beginnings in Australia, this annual campaign has become the world's largest non-government-funded organization donating to prostate cancer research.

"Last year, we eclipsed our goal of one million participants worldwide and raised over $147 million," says Mark Hedstrom, a spokesman for the annual fundraiser.

Movember is a simple, fun effort that works like this: Participants register online and sign up sponsors. Then, on Nov. 1, the Movember men shave their faces clean and for the rest of the month grow a moustache. In Australia, the nickname for a moustache is a mo.

Despite the millions Movember puts into research, Hedstrom says an equally important goal of the campaign is having men take control of their health.

"We want men to think November, then Movember, and then think about getting a health check and telling other men to get a check up," says Hedstrom.

Go to ca.movember.com, hit Sign Up, and fill out your details. It takes mere minutes to create a Mo Space page, where you can upload a profile photo, invite friends to register and donate, and set your personal URL you can send around.

Growing my first mo. I didn't bring sexy back, but I sure felt empowered

Last year, for the first time, I grew a mo' for Movember. I had no idea what it would be like to grow a moustache, but the reaction from friends, family, colleagues and strangers alike was fantastic.

Sure, my mo' looked a bit silly on me, as my wife and two daughters can attest — I didn't exactly bring sexy back — but it was a totally empowering experience.

For those who didn't know why I was growing my mo' (yes, there are still some folks who aren't familiar with Movember) it was a great chance to start a conversation and explain why I was doing it, and what the cause is all about — prostate-cancer awareness and men's mental health.

Participating makes you basically a walking billboard for men's health. Being my first time out, I decided to join a team. There's strength in numbers, and it pushes you to compete with your teammates for donations. It's also neat to see your collective total build up over the month. You can also create your own team, and become a captain. If you decide to grow a mo', don't be shy about asking for donations.

If you're trying it this year or considering, be proud of joining this global movement — the Movember effect. There's no better way to get men talking proactively about their health. NEIL MORTON/FOR METRO or 80 per cent. If you look for cancer cells, you will find them, but most men are never in danger," says Chodak.

Remember, your doctor's heard it all — and isn't there to judge. Here are just a few common questions we got Chodak to speak on.

Will I get prostate cancer?

The PSA blood test, developed in the 1980s, measures a protein produced by both cancerous and non-cancerous cells. If the PSA reveals a high count of the protein, a doctor then looks for cancer cells, and it's likely they will be found. But don't worry! These cells don't mean you have the disease.

"By the age of 20, 12 per cent of all men have cancer cells in their prostate," says Chodak. "By age 50, it's 30 per cent — and by age 80, it's around 70 percent including slowing of the (urine) stream, getting up to urinate at night, difficulty starting and stopping the stream and incomplete emptying of the bladder," Chodak says.

Unfortunately, we don't know the reasons behind it, but it can be treated. Medication and surgery are options, as is a new non-surgical choice, PlasmaButton, which claims to vaporize the enlarged prostate tissue away, reducing pressure on the urethra.

Why can't I get it up?

If you're facing this issue, know that you're not alone: "It helps to know that 40 million American men have the same problem with erections," says Chodak. "It's usually men in their 30s or 40s."

Chodak says you should bring the issue to the attention of your doctor, who can help you narrow down the cause behind it. "It can depend on weight and diet and drugs you might be taking — including recreational drugs." Your doctor can then supply medication and look into supplementing your testosterone to fix the problem.

Talking prostates, ED and other health issues

Work wise: Don't let the temp be dropped

If you don't want to be permanently pushed from your temporary position, avoid these workplace mistakes

More companies are turning to temps to help out during busy periods or fill in when an employee is sick or on vacation.

If you're looking for full-time work or a way to sup-

Don't dress like a slob

- Even if you're not looking to turn a temping job into a full-time position, it's not a good idea to show up for work in a pair of sweats (unless, of course, you're going to spend the day painting).
- Temping can open doors to opportunities you hadn't considered, so it's important to dress for success.

Avoid stirring the pot

One of the downsides of being a temp is that you're easily replaceable, so it's not in your best interest to go around burning bridges.

the temp jobs rolling in, here are five things you should avoid on the (temporary) job:

Don't reorganize your co-worker's desk

If you're temping to fill in for someone who's sick or on vacation, there's a good chance you'll be sitting at their desk. While it's okay to wipe cookie crumbs off the keyboard, the person who regularly sits there probably isn't going to appreciate it if you tidy up their workspace or reorganize files on their computer (or leave your own cookie crumbs on their keyboard).

Don't get involved in office politics

If you're temping on a regular basis for the same company, it's easy to get sucked into office politics.

Try your best to avoid gossiping about co-workers and getting involved in office dramas — one of the downsides of being a temp is that you're easily replaceable, so it's not in your best interest to go around burning bridges.

Don't use work time as personal time

It's OK to chat with your co-workers; after all, you're not a robot. But it's best to avoid compulsively checking Facebook, making personal calls or scanning job sites for full-time employment while you're on the clock — this sends a message to your temporary employer that you're not taking the job seriously.

Don't compromise yourself

While you shouldn't waste your employer's time, you should also value your own. Some temps want to make a good impression by working through their unpaid lunch break or taking on tasks that are outside of the original temping contract.

If you burn out or get sick, you won't be able to keep working — and you don't have benefits or sick days to fall back on.

If you don't take care of yourself, no one else is going to do it for you.

The importance of being influential: What it means to be a modern mentor

My guru of greatness.

Three reasons to take a wandering business hopeful under your wing

Ask Kevin Schwenker about his experiences as a mentor and he'll likely have enough stories to convince any businessperson to free up some time to find a protégé or two.

Schwenker is a seven-year mentor with the Canadian Youth Business Foundation, a non-profit organization that provides youth aged 18 to 39 with start-up financing, pre-launch expertise, online business resources and mentoring to help them launch and sustain successful businesses.

can play a key role in helping a future mogul get their business off the ground and turn their dream into a reality.

"It doesn't take a lot of time to make a huge difference in helping a young entrepreneur become successful," Schwenker says. Need more incentive? Here are some reasons you should consider taking on a mentee:

Pay it forward

Maybe your mentor was a kind professor who coached you before you landed your first job.

Perhaps it was a manager who took you under their wing. There's at least one person who played a role in shaping the businessperson you are today.

As a mentor, you can help mold the next generation, which means you can:

'Round the world wisdom

Facing adversity? Failure is only information

The severe market crash in October 2008 changed my life. I started running to regain my health, both emotional and physical. Shortly after I took my first steps, I ran the Gobi March in China in June '09, followed by the Atacama Crossing in Chile in '10, and the Sahara Race in Egypt in '11. In this post, I share a lesson about life, learned from the desert.

LESSONS FROM THE DESERT
Stefan Danis
life@metronews.ca

We all experience failure. But do we always learn valuable lessons? Though failure can be harsh, it oftentimes is a gateway to greater success.

In preparing for the Gobi Desert race, my failures occurred early in training. As a first-time runner, my

I accepted failure, but made the decision to reframe it as "just information."

Committing myself to in-pool training, I found myself clasping a floatie alongside the lovely grannies of the early morning aqua-fitness class. Repeatedly watching a video showing proper running technique, I adapted my own method. I relentlessly practised in the pool, where the water's resistance allowed for slow motion running. My failure in training caused me to pause, review, and set a new training approach.

What had seemed impossible then happened. Ironically, my last step out of the water would be followed by my first step in the desert. After not actually running in over two months, and never having run more than half a marathon, I embarked on my first ever marathon.

Failure allowed me to hit reset and alter my technique. As unlikely as it may seem, failure can be the key to unlocking future successes.

STEFAN DANIS IS THE CEO OF NEXCA-REER AND MANDRAKE, AND THE AUTHOR OF GOBI RUNNER

technique was poor and, compounded with a lot of distance running, I got injured fast. In addition to stinging blisters and routinely sore muscles, shin splints were now a reality. Known as a debilitating runner's curse, the injury had my doctor prescribing two months of rest and suggesting I only train in the pool.

Back then, the finish line seemed further away than ever — a race that was over two months before it even began. Acknowledging reality,

Bloody Mary isn't just a drink (or a ghost in the mirror)

There's a secret ingredient popping up in a diverse range of recipes.

Fish sauce, traditionally used as a flavour enhancer in Asian cuisine, is being added to dishes such as this Bloody Mary Chicken with Olive-Celery Tapenade.

1. In a zip-close plastic bag, combine the V8, fish sauce, Worcestershire, horseradish and cayenne pepper. Add the chicken, close the bag, squeezing out any air, then refrigerate and allow to marinate for 2 to 6 hours.

2. Meanwhile, prepare the tapenade. In a medium bowl, combine the celery, finely chopped green olives, lemon juice, garlic and peppers. Stir well and allow to sit for at least 1 hour at room temperature for best flavour. This can be prepared ahead and refrigerated, then allowed to come to room temperature before serving.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ingredients

- 11.5-oz can V8 vegetable juice
- 3 tbsp fish sauce
- 3 tbsp Worcestershire sauce
- 3 tbsp prepared horseradish
- 1/2 tsp cayenne pepper
- 1 1/2 lbs chicken breast tenders
- 3 stalks celery, finely chopped
- 1/2 cup green olives, finely chopped
- 2 tbsp lemon juice
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1/4 cup Peppadew peppers (or other sweet-hot peppers), chopped

Dinner. Chicken Cacciatoro

1. Cook fettuccine according to package instructions.

2. Season chicken breasts with salt and pepper.

3. Place chicken in ovenproof dish and add onion, garlic, mushrooms, red pepper, Antonella's Roasted Garlic pasta sauce and white wine. Season with salt and pepper, to taste, then cover with aluminum foil and place in a 350 F preheated oven for 90 minutes.

4. For extra flavour, remove dish from the oven just before it's done, sprinkle with cheese and bread crumbs, then place under the broiler until the top turns golden brown.

5. Place chicken on top of cooked fettuccine and serve.

COURTESY ANTONELLA'S PASTA SAUCES

Ingredients

- 1 package of fettuccine (375 g)
- 8 chicken breasts
- Salt and pepper, to taste
- 1 onion, minced
- 2 garlic cloves, chopped
- 1 dozen mushrooms, quartered
- 1 red pepper, thinly sliced
- 1 box (750 ml) of Antonella's Roasted Garlic pasta sauce
- 1 cup of white wine
- 100 g aged cheddar, grated (optional)
- Bread crumbs (optional)

Chicken Parmesan that's big on flavour, but not on fat

A few changes to the traditional Chicken Puttanesca Parmesan recipe and each serving comes in at just 360 calories and 11 grams of fat.

1. Heat the oven to 400 F. Coat a baking sheet with cooking spray.

Ingredients

- 2 boneless, skinless chicken breasts
- 1 egg
- 1 cup panko bread crumbs
- 1 tsp garlic powder
- 1/2 tsp salt
- 1/4 tsp ground black pepper
- 1 tbsp olive oil
- 4 to 6 oil-packed anchovies
- 1/4 tsp red pepper flakes
- 1 large yellow onion, diced
- 2 Roma tomatoes, cored and chopped
- 1/2 cup chopped pitted Kalamata olives
- 4 cloves garlic, minced
- 2 tbsp capers
- 5 large leaves fresh basil, chopped
- 1/4 cup grated Parmesan cheese

This recipe serves four. MATTHEW MEAD/ THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

2. One at a time, carefully slice each chicken breast in half horizontally to create two thin halves.

3. Place the egg in a wide, shallow bowl. In a second bowl, mix together the bread crumbs, garlic powder, salt and pepper.

4. One at a time, dunk the chicken cutlets first in the egg, then in the bread crumbs, pressing as needed to adhere them to the meat. Arrange the breaded cutlets on the baking sheet, then mist the tops with cooking spray. Bake for 20 minutes, or until lightly browned.

5. Meanwhile, in a large skillet over medium-high, heat the oil. Add the anchovies and red pepper flakes, then sauté until the anchovies have dissolved. Add the onion and sauté for 5 minutes. Add the tomatoes and bring to a simmer. Cook just until the tomatoes begin to break down, about 5 to 7 minutes. Remove the pan from the heat and stir in the olives, garlic, capers and basil. Season with salt and pepper.

6. When the chicken is done, transfer each cutlet to a serving plate. Spoon the sauce over each, then top with Parmesan.

Sens coach MacLean stays on point after latest loss

NHL. Goalie Anderson hurt in OT loss, but bench boss happy with club's fight vs. Stars

| On Sunday |          |

It can be hard to stay positive when your team is struggling as badly as the Ottawa Senators have been lately, but Paul MacLean can see the bright side.

After losing 4-3 in a shootout to the Dallas Stars Sunday afternoon, the Senators' coach took solace in the fact that his team forced the game past overtime.

"I thought we dug in and found a way to get something out of a game," MacLean said. "That's a great start for our team."

While the Senators (4-6-4) will happily take the point, they realize they're left facing a five-game winless streak. In addition, they haven't won on home ice since Oct. 17.

"We can't keep doing this all season," said Erik Karlsson. "We got a point and we played better than we have in the past so we have to take the positives out of things and (Sunday) that was it."

Adding to their list of woes is the fact the Senators could be without starting goaltender

Craig Anderson.

Anderson went down hard after being hit by Valeri Nichushkin with 1:32 gone in overtime. He was taken off the ice on a stretcher after he appeared to take a knee to the head.

The Ottawa goalie was able to walk around on his own by the end of the game, but MacLean said he was suffering from a stiff neck and would require further evaluation. MacLean said he expects him to miss Tuesday's game in Columbus.

Jamie Benn scored the winner in the shootout. Milan Michalek, Jason Spezza and Bobby Ryan were all stopped by Kari Lehtonen, who faced 36 shots.

Anderson faced 36 shots before Robin Lehner was forced into action. Lehner made two saves in overtime and stopped Tyler Seguin in the shootout.

"It teaches a little bit of humility."

Defenceman Mark Borowiecki. The Senators ran into some bad luck in the third period when Borowiecki, trying to clear the puck from in front of the net, put it in his own net to give the Stars a 3-2 lead.

"We rebounded, which we really haven't seen our team do in the past."

Senators forward Bobby Ryan, who tied the game with 9.6 seconds remaining in regulation, scoring his eighth of the season when he jumped on a loose puck in the slot and put it in past Kari Lehtonen.

Chiefs enter bye week on a high

Kansas City Chiefs cornerback Sean Smith was exhausted after he returned an interception 100 yards for a touchdown.

"I was definitely happy I made it," Smith said. "I wanted to celebrate, but I was too tired."

That's fine, because the Chiefs are suddenly breathing easier after their defence kept Kansas City's perfect start intact.

Smith's interception and linebacker Tamba Hali's 11-yard fumble return for a TD aided the Chiefs in overcoming a pedestrian offence and their own leaky defence in securing a 23-13 win over the Buffalo Bills on Sunday.

Kansas City (9-0) remained the NFL's only undefeated team and matched the best start in franchise history, set in 2003. The Chiefs now enter their bye week before a key AFC West showdown against the Denver Broncos (7-1) on Nov. 17.

If the only thing perfect about the Chiefs is their record so far, coach Andy Reid refuses to make any apologies.

"We're not going to make excuses for it," said Reid, who in his first year has the Chiefs continuing their worst-to-first run after a 2-14 finish last season. "We're pretty happy that we got the touchdowns. We'll take them any way we can get them." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thanks but no tank: Sixers defy cynics with perfect start

NBA. Red-hot Philly not heeding assumption that this was supposed to be a rebuilding year Winnless for Wiggins is out. Flawless in Philly is so in.

Look who's leading the NBA standings, with a 3-0 record featuring wins over Miami and Chicago. Rub your eyes all you want, the answer — for now — is the awful-to-awesome Philadelphia 76ers.

Yes, this is the same franchise that prompted Las Vegas to set the over-under for total wins this season at 16.5.

There's an early buzz in Philly over the way The Little Tank Engine That Could has stormed through the elite of the Eastern Conference en route to their best start since 2006-07, when Allen Iverson was running the show, not showing up to announce his retirement.

The fans that openly root-ed for them to lose so they could potentially select Kansas prospect Andrew Wiggins with the No. 1 pick in the 2014 draft — creating #winlessforwiggins on Twitter — have switched stripes and embraced the team.

The real deal

Just as the sign read Saturday night after their latest win over Chicago, "3-0. That's No Bull."

"We're excited about the victories," forward Thaddeus Young said, "but the work doesn't stop here."

Nope, but the Sixers will enjoy the can-you-believe-this victories while they can.

The team can thank three rookies for their start: general manager Sam Hinkie, coach Brett Brown and point guard Michael Carter-Williams.

With his team mired in mediocrity for a decade, Hinkie was the GM who put the rebuilding plan in place, drafting MCW and trading for Nerlens Noel. Brown has preached patience — while pushing an up-tempo style that had the Sixers score 100-plus points in all three wins.

And then there's MCW.

If basketball fans weren't familiar with what the MCW stood for after his 22-point, 12-assist, nine-steal debut on opening night against Miami, they are now. After three games, Carter-Williams has opened eyes around the league, outplaying Washington's John Wall and Chicago's Derrick Rose on consecutive nights. He had 26 points, 10 assists and rallied the Sixers from 18 down in the second half to beat the Bulls on Saturday night.

"Coach gives me a lot of confidence out there," Carter-Williams said. "I'm able to play freely." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Djokovic denies Ferrer another title in Paris

Novak Djokovic won the last four games in each set to beat defending champion David Ferrer 7-5, 7-5 Sunday in the final of the Paris Masters.

The second-seeded Serb won his 17th straight match to capture his sixth title this season and the 40th of his career.

"Summer was up and down," Djokovic said, "and now again I'm playing on a very high level and have lots of confidence in myself, in my game. I'm at a good spot at this moment."

Ferrer led 5-3 in each set, but Djokovic came back both times and clinched the victory when the Spaniard sent a forehand into the net.

Djokovic, who still has a slim chance to finish the season ahead of No. 1 Rafael Nadal in the rankings, hit 34 winners to 15 for Ferrer and won 15 of 18 net points.

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20

A financial or business matter demands your attention – not next month but right now. If you have not got it sorted by the time Mercury turns direct next weekend it could cost you.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

Offer to meet others halfway today and they will jump at the chance. Be open about what it is you desire and encourage others to be honest about their desires too.

Gemini

May 22 - June 21

Don't waste time on trivial things or petty vendettas. On the work front especially you have important tasks to complete. Get serious about your ambitions.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23

If you are planning on doing something out of the ordinary then you had better be quick about it. By this time next week circumstances will have changed so get it done.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

It should be obvious to you by now that a plan of some sort is not going to amount to much, so junk it and focus on something new. By the end of the week you will be working on something different.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

Few things in life are black and white and with Mercury, your ruler, still moving retrograde no doubt the whole world looks gray. Never mind. A week from now everything will be sweetness and light again, so smile!

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

Maybe something drastic will happen in your personal life to set you on a new course, or maybe your way of looking at the world will change – either way this will be a week of major developments.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

Because Mercury is moving retrograde through your sign be careful not to let your mind fool you. It won't be until the 10th, when Mercury moves in your favour again, that you begin to see clearly.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

Usually you are upfront about what you think and feel but for some reason you are reluctant to let others know what's going on in your heart. Maybe it's because you're not fully sure yourself.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

Someone is being less than honest and you must make it your business to find out exactly where and why they are trying to trick you.

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

You want to talk to someone in a position of power but you can sense that now is not the right time, and you are right. A week from now is the right time so be patient.

Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

Try not to let slip facts that rivals might be able to use against you. Pisces is such a trusting sign that you sometimes say more than you should. Think self-preservation. SALLY BROMPTON
